Computer Help by Ben Huot

My last 11 years of experience with computers are partially expressed in the following articles. My computer work is mostly graphic design with Mac OS X and Linux.

The articles in the first section, Technical Explanations, explain general computer information, give an introduction to design, explain the problems with Microsoft, explain PC specific problems and solutions, and explain the advantages of Microsoft alternatives.

The articles in the second section, Technical Challenges, provide more detailed instructions, but only require programs that are free or similar techniques will work in a variety of different software titles. The command line techniques work similarly on Mac OS X as they do on Linux, although downloading and installing them is different.

This book plus many more quality books, graphics and audio content, and my Budget Mac Software Links are available for no cost download at www.benjamin-newton.com
